Tony Oposa is one of Asia's leading voices in the global arena of environmental law. He pioneered the practice of Environmental Law in the Philippines, and his work is known locally and internationally for establishing, in the highest court of law, the principle of inter-generational responsibility – that this present generation has a responsibility to protect the environment for future generations. He is an environmental law and policy consultant; an expert in environmental policy and law, governance and litigation; an effective and respected activist for forest and marine protected areas in his native country; and a true warrior for the environment. Mr. Oposa is honored for his many distinguished contributions to the development and implementation of international environmental law in his native country and internationally.
