Senior Resource Management Planner

Canterbury is at the forefront of water management and we need a senior planner to help us with our ambitious work program of preparing catchment plans to manage water allocation in Canterbury's rivers.

You should have a strong knowledge of planning, an ability to understand and apply science in a resource management framework and be capable of developing creative solutions. You will work very closely with scientists, key stakeholders and the community so strong communication, project management and community facilitation skills are a must.

In return we offer you the opportunity to be involved in some leading resource management work, as part of a focused but friendly team to manage some of the most complex water planning issues in the country.

Vacancy 2529 closes Sunday 8 August 2010
