

Senior Advisor, Place Planning

Do you want to be at the forefront of shaping the future direction of Wellington City.

Do you enjoy being in a fast paced, collegial working environment?

Then you should apply for this Senior Advisor role in the Place Planning team at Wellington City Council.

You will help lead key areas of work as part of the Planning for Growth work programme.

This exciting multi-year programme involves both the development of a city-wide spatial plan, and a full review of the District Plan.

Applicants with experience in the following areas should consider applying:

- Development and implementation of urban growth strategies and spatial plans
- District plan reviews
- Engagement with communities on housing, business and intensification
- Natural hazards and resilience
- Heritage, character and development economics
- Working across multiple agencies towards the development of strategies, policies and plans

This is an important role with the Place Planning team but has no direct reports.

You need to be a self-starter with lots of initiative, have excellent organisational skills, and be comfortable working across a number of projects, as well as with other teams in the business unit and across the Council. You will also need to be comfortable working with other local authorities in the Wellington Region, as well as central government.

A tertiary qualification in resource management or a related planning qualification, and ideally at least five plus years' experience working in a relevant central or local government agency, or the private sector is also preferable.

In return, we can offer you a collegial working environment with stimulating and rewarding work in Absolutely Positively Wellington, Smart Capital. Join us in making a positive difference - shape your own future, while contributing to the future of Wellington.
