

Consent Planner - Natural Resources

Do you want a job where you will add value every day? The Tasman region is thriving and we are seeking an experienced planner to join our Natural Resources Consents team. This is a fabulous opportunity to join a team of dedicated, experienced consent planners, and take a meaningful part in shaping our communities and environment for the benefit of future generations.

In this full-time role, you will be responsible for giving professional advice and technical expertise for regional and earthworks resource consent applications. There is plenty of variety in the job, with consenting of stormwater and wastewater discharges, water takes, earthworks and discharges.

Through your previous roles, you will already be familiar with consent processing and you'll have sound knowledge of contaminant and discharge related law and practices, plus water management and wastewater discharge experience. Experience with subdivision consents would also be an advantage. To complement your work history, you will have a tertiary qualification in planning, resource management, science or engineering.

We're looking for someone with a natural customer service style who communicates exceptionally well and is looking for an opportunity to expand on their skill-set and career profile. Are you someone who can make the technical simple, while not losing sight of the detail?

As a Unitary Authority, we can offer you an interesting and challenging work programme, ongoing professional development and the chance to broaden your knowledge base in a team where you have the opportunity to add value every day. Relocation assistance is also available. Apply now!

You can view the full details, and submit your application online at www.tasman.govt.nz or for more information contact the Human Resources Team on Ph. 03 543 8393.
