

Join the blue revolution

Are you:

- + Passionate about New Zealand's primary sector, including aquaculture?
- + Keen to help ensure we manage coasts and waterways sustainably?
- + Determined to apply and grow your skills, and make an impact?

About your role

- + New Zealand's sustainable aquaculture industry can be a bigger part of our economy, growing in a way that prioritises positive environmental outcomes, working with people, and reducing waste and emissions.
- + Globally, the potential for aquaculture to meet growing demand for sustainable seafood is being called a "blue revolution." For New Zealand, ensuring growth is sustainable and recognises other values are bottom lines.
- + We're looking for two passionate senior/policy analysts to join the team charged with making this happen for New Zealand. We want one full-time and one part-time team member.
- + We offer flexible hours and working arrangements based on your needs and commitments, per MPI's flexible working policy. The part time position might suit a busy parent, or someone who's studying and looking for part-time work.
- + You will be engaged across a number of projects to test, apply and build your relationship and analysis skills. Our driven and experienced team is based in Nelson. We will offer you opportunities to grow as you help us implement the Government's strategy for aquaculture.
