

Seeking a new challenge? We're hiring.

Resource Planner Parks Kaihanga Mahere Rawa (Ngā Pāka)

Our city is changing and we need skilled people to help make that happen. Working for Porirua City is an opportunity for you to make a real difference in the community. You'll be welcomed into a team that's collaborative, values input and empowers your development. To top it off, the harbour and bush are at your doorstep; it's a great place to work.

Porirua is a dynamic city experiencing a massive phase of growth. There are many exciting projects in the pipeline and we are looking for a dynamic person to join our Parks Resource Planning team. You will be able to jump in and work with our development community to ensure that our future open spaces meet the required outcomes for Porirua City.

To be successful in the role you need to show us you can:

- Review and provide expert advice on resource consents
- Work with developers to ensure that the open space needs of the City are provided for in new development areas
- Prepare development agreements for future open spaces
- Assess and prepare resource consent applications for Parks projects
- Establish and maintain working relationships across the business and provide advice and guidance on relevant expert matters

We are seeking someone to share our passion for our open spaces to ensure that the effects on reserves from development are mitigated appropriately and someone can contribute to the management of open spaces and reserve planning. You must have experience with subdivision processes and knowledge of the Reserves Act would also be an advantage.

You'll need to show us that you have the following:

- Three to five years' experience in planning, parks and recreation management or resource management
- Experience with large subdivision processes and knowledge of the Reserves Act
- Eligibility for membership of the New Zealand Planning Institute
- Experience with subdivision consents and an understanding of easements
- Excellent research and report writing skills
- A full NZ driver's licence
