

Principal Strategic Landuse and Transport Planner

About the role:

This position will see you working in the Infrastructure team, reporting to the Strategic Planning & Sustainability Manager. You will be a key component to our long-term results and ensuring successful outcomes along the way.

The chosen person will maintain the Airport's Master Plan and drive the process to keep it regularly updated and relevant. This role is all about ensuring that the long-term development options for Airport precinct land are known and enabled for planned, efficient, purposeful and timely development. The role has a high level of autonomy and the ability to influence positive change within the wider Airport environment.

We are looking for someone that:

- Is purpose led and values based; you will want to be part of a team that is proud to be working hard for New Zealand
- Has a great base of solid experience. You'll be tertiary qualified with a relevant professional membership; you'll have at least ten years of significant land use planning experience within a commercial environment, and we'd like you to be able to demonstrate your experience leading master plan developments and your commercial nous
- Has a great approach to working with people and organisations with diverse interests along with the ability to work purposefully at developing and building momentum over complex and long-term programmes of work
- Knows how to get the best out of third-party advisors and team members but isn't afraid of doing your share of the mahi too
- Is an expert at communicating with influence, accuracy, and passion – in person, in presentations and in writing
- Is curious about how datasets and systems can be created to inform, test, and improve long term decision making and infrastructure planning

Benefits:

- Career progression
- Free carpark
