

Lecturer/Senior Lecturer in Urban Planning (Environment and Sustainability)

The University is Aotearoa New Zealand's pre-eminent higher education institution and a comprehensive, research-intensive, and international university, as reflected in our global ranking - 81 in the 2021 QS World University Rankings and 1st in the world in the THE University Impact Rankings.

Our mission and values place a strong emphasis on both our student body and our scholarly community, and we work with both community and enterprise to advance the well-being of the peoples of Auckland and New Zealand, with a clear commitment to pursuing sustainability. We recognise a special relationship with Māori under the Treaty of Waitangi, are a global leader in teaching and research about the Pacific Islands and Ocean, and are the largest provider of degree-level education to Pacific peoples in New Zealand.

Our Faculty of Creative Arts and Industries promotes artistic and professional innovation and collaboration, The School of Architecture and Planning is New Zealand's leading educator of architects, urban designers and urban planners, and is highly regarded for its advanced interdisciplinary study and research, innovative design focus and studio-based pedagogy.

Te Whiwhinga mahi - The opportunity

We are now seeking applications for a lecturer or senior lecturer to join our School of Architecture and Planning team on a permanent basis to support our growing number of undergraduate and postgraduate students. As a part of this role, you will supervise masters and doctoral students and be committed to delivering a world-class research and publication programme as well as contributing to school or faculty service and leadership. Ideally, we are looking to have you join our whanau by November 2021 ready to start teaching in Semester 2022.

He kōrero mōu - About you

You will be expected to provide innovative and high-quality studio, lecture-based and seminar teaching at undergraduate and postgraduate levels in the areas of environmental planning. You must hold a professionally recognised qualification in urban planning/planning and a PhD in planning or a related field.

We are especially interested in applicants who have had a research focus on environmental planning from a climate change perspective.

Mō tō mātou rōpū - About the team

We are proud of the reputation we have built through the hard work of our diverse and internationally recognised academic staff and strong connections with its professional communities. Teaching and research are supported by excellent digital and traditional workshops and specialist studio facilities. We value our unique heritage and place in the world by developing mutually beneficial relationships and research agendas with Māori.
